About the film...

Featuring Ibu Robin Lim, 2011 CNN Hero of the Year, Guerrilla Midwife is a powerful documentary about "the human rights issues of Maternal and Child survival..." The 90-minute film depicts courageous mothers and their midwives crossing language and culture barriers with the same belief in mind: "That peace on earth can be achieved, one baby at a time." About the filmmaker...

Déjà Cresencia Bernhardt draws on her Asian-American mixed heritage to tell the stories of a planet displaced. Her documentaries have captured social/environmental issues from Africa to Indonesia to Haiti. Déjà is currently in post-production of her first narrative film, "How I Lost My Birthday," while completing her MFA at University of Texas Radio-Television-Film.

Every baby's first breath on Earth could be one of peace and love. Every mother should be healthy and strong. Every birth could be safe and loving. But our world is not there yet. ~ Ibu Robin Lim
